If we told you that you could get paid to watch videos on your computer, you'd probably laugh.

It's too good to be true, right?

But we're serious. There's a website that will pay you to watch short video clips online. One minute you might watch someone bake brownies and the next you might get the latest updates on Kardashian drama.

All you have to do is choose which videos you want to watch and answer a few quick questions about them afterward.

No, it won't replace your full-time job, but it's something easy you can do while you're already on the couch tonight wasting time on your phone.

Unlike other sites, this site pays you in cash — no points or gift cards. It's already paid its users more than $56 million.

There's something so satisfying about those gas station scratch-off tickets, but it's better to avoid them because, well, that's not Penny Hoarding.

WHERE TO GO FROM HERE?

Instead, try scratching for free! Each day, it releases a new assortment of digital scratch-off tickets. Lucktastic says instant wins range from $1 to $10,000. You can also earn tokens that you can exchange for free gift cards to retailers including Amazon, Walmart, Kohl's, Sephora and more.

The app is supported by advertising, which allows it to keep the payouts high and the games free.

3. Earn up to $60/Hour Helping Small Business Owners

Does earning $60 an hour sound appealing? And you don't even have to leave your house? Oh, and you get to help others.

You don't have to have a CPA to be successful in this business. In fact, all you really need are decent computer skills and a passion for helping business owners tackle real-world problems.

It's a great opportunity for moms who want to work part time, millennials who are just out of college and anyone who wants to bring in real money while working from home.

The grocery store is a surprisingly zen place. Somewhere between the soothing elevator music, the free samples and the wafting aroma of rotisserie chicken, you settle into a peaceful groove.

None of the stress of work or home — it's just you and the aisles.

Even better than getting paid to grocery shop? If you need the money, like, now, you can cash out instantly after each delivery.

Holly Gaston, of San Francisco, California, has tried plenty of side gigs. With Postmates, she makes an average of $15 an hour. Plus, she says it's been much more enjoyable than any of her previous side gigs.

Signing up shouldn't take you more than about three minutes.

Cities around the country are filled with two things: incredible restaurants and busy people.

You can help connect them by delivering food through a variety of apps.

As a "Dasher," you'll work as an independent contractor, setting your own hours and working as much or little as you want, meaning how much you can make is up to you.

You'll earn a $6 fee for each delivery, plus keep 100% of your tips. Depending on the day, you could earn up to $25 an hour. If you drive full time, that's $1,000 a week!

For a real-life case, Jose Neri, a former Dasher in California, reports earning $500 to $600 a week working just lunches and dinners. They could take about two-and-a-half deliveries an hour, and users would tip between 10% and 15%.

All you need to get started is an insured vehicle or a bicycle and a smartphone. You should be at least 18 years old and have a valid driver's license.

6. Get Paid When Your Neighbor's Dog or Cat Spends the Night

We all want an extra paycheck, but none of us want to get a second job — we're already exhausted from the first one. Or maybe you're disabled, retired or a stay-at-home parent who needs a little extra money in the bank.

What if there were a way to do that and get your puppy fix at the same time?

Rover is a website that connects neighbors who need a dog sitter with people who love having an extra dog (or two) spend the night.

The average Rover sitter earns $450 a month, but we spoke with stay-at-home mom Bryn Wied, who quickly started earning upwards of $500.

"Within two months, I was turning away business," says Wied, who dog sits in California. "Within three months, I raised my prices to what everyone else was charging."

It'll take a little effort upfront, though (to filter out all the Cruella de Vils). You'll create a Rover profile where you'll answer questions about your experience with puppies and set your availability and prices.

Dog owners will reach out to you, and before you know it, you'll be snuggled up with all the neighborhood dogs — and making extra money.

Rakuten has the hookup with just about every online store you shop, which means it can give you a kickback every time you buy toilet paper on Amazon — even book that flight home for Thanksgiving.

Rice says she uses Digistore for things she already has to buy, like rental cars and flights. She even used the money she earned to help her pay for her recent cross-country move.

It takes less than 60 seconds to create a Digistore Account and start shopping. All you need is an email address, then you can immediately start shopping your go-to stores through the site.

Talk about money for nothing.

Start with a stock photography marketplace like Foap.

Download the Foap app, then upload your photos — even if you took them with your phone. When your photo is purchased, you automatically profit. Because Foap does most of the legwork, you'll split the profit 50-50.

Want to go even bigger? Upload high-quality images to Shutterstock, one of the more popular stock photography sites. Each time your photo (or video) is sold, you pocket up to 30% of the sale price (while retaining the copyright).

There are many other ways to monetize the video content like affiliate marketing, selling merchandise, or selling online courses and services via online learning and tutoring platforms.

Users can create short videos and share their favorite music, talk about beauty clothes and cosmetics and also make money from these videos. These videos are called Tiktoks which are uploaded in seconds with all of the effects in the world to make them unique from any other users.

Tiktok recently launched the "Tour TikTok Creators" section. In essence, you can make money from making videos if it spreads well - 30 cents to a dollar for each video that is watched for more than 5 seconds. If a video goes viral then we get 100 dollars! The profit starts rolling out from advertisement views (profit share varies according with number of likes) and also the more income one receives from viewing another persons video on their profile page.

My Best Advice Going Forward:

Making money from side hustles sounds all glitz and glam — and it can be, in a sweatpants kind of way. But there are also things you need to know before fully diving in. Here are a few tips to help you get started.

Listen: There are a lot of work-from-home side hustle scams out there, so be sure to use your best judgement. I recommend you check out online reports on common illegitimate work-at-home ploys -- so you can be well aware of whats legitimate and whats not.

Remember: Don't be afraid to spend money on additional training in order to learn how to get started in your work-at-home side hustle activity. The job market for side hustles is rapidly shifting and as the saying goes, 'Those who know are those that grow!'

If you pick your favorite legitimeate side hustle outlined in this book you'll have a much better chance to earn some side hustle money as opposed to doing some random thing that is not proven and might be a scam.

Instead, do it together with someone who sets it all up for you and shows you exactly how to execute the framework step by step.

Follow his daily instructions (1 hour or less) and you are done for the day.

The good news is that this works from anywhere in the world and no matter what experience level, age, or job you are currently working.

You can do this work from home, you just need a computer (desktop or laptop is fine, and a stable internet connection.
